BREAKING AT LOCAL PLACES

On Sunday night the Billy Rose Bao station office door was forced open. The thieves took the money from the pay cooler. They then went to the elementary school where they broke into the school and apparently used a crowbar to pry open the principal's office. They then tried open a chest of drawers, but obtained no money.

OLDS OUTSCORE BARRHEAD

The Drayton Valley Hotel Olens came up with a big win at Barrhead last Sunday afternoon when they outscored the home team 5-2 in a fast hard-fought game. The Pee Wee game (exhibition) was played in the bar/hood area before a good crowd of enthusiastic fans.

The Hotel squad got off to a slow start but after two fast goals late in the first period they really were in for a big victory.

In the second period the Olens scored two more goals and the game was over. Dorel Stevens started things rolling for the Olens with an unassisted goal and minutes later Wayne Labouliere got one with Larry Menard's assist. In the second period Stan Lachuk made it 3-0 in a pass for Larry Schuch before the home team came back with a pair of corners by Benny Lloyds and Wayne Thompson in making it 3-2 for D.V. In the third it was Steve Mitchell from Olens who scored from Mikevol from Micklow to close out the scoring.

Both those teams are entered in the Provincial playoffs and the Olens are that they just might be paired off in a series. If this happens we will have a pair of excellent games of hockey. Whitcort also has a team competing for Provincial honours at the Pee Wee level so this part of the province has plenty formidable representation to say the least.

Article 2 FOR PHOTOS WITH EXTRA APPEAL, FRAME YOUR SUBJECT

To "punch" into your pictures, try framing your subject. You can take good pictures simply by exposing a roll of film. But add a dash of imagination, and your prints will take on an "extra something" that commands attention.

For example, landscapes provide some excellent photo possibilities at this time of year. You could have some reasonably attractive photos by merely stepping out of your car, setting your camera and shooting from where you are at the moment.

But, on the other hand, you could scout around. Perhaps you'll find two branches which make a beautiful view. And you might decide to place a model between the branches, with his back to the camera so that the viewer is led into the scenery. Now the photo has been transformed from a routine shot of the countryside into something artistic.

By framing a landscape scene, your photo takes on a sense of depth, a "third-dimensional" effect. Framing's great advantage is that it provides emphasis. One feature or a group of features stands out prominently as the reason for the photo. A "framed" photo has a focus — it means something.

Framing also draws interest for other reasons. For example, it gives the viewer a sense of completeness, a feeling that nothing more could be done to complete the picture.

Further, it focuses attention directly on the subject and prevents the viewer's attention from wandering. And framing makes it easier to produce a finished print of top-notch interest.

You can frame your picture with a tree, a shrub, an outcropping of rock. But you don't have to trek into the country for a frame. All you need is a doorway, a fence, a skyline, the silhouette of a bridge, and you can try this trick with almost any subject.

Safety Boss Men at Burning Oilwell

With great fanfare and publicity from western Canada's press and radio and T.V., Red Adair was called from a fire in Algeria to what he described as a "little" fire, the much publicized fire at Sun Oil Company Blueberry Well No. 202K, north of Fort St. John, B.C.

In all probability it had not been necessary to call the busy world-famous fire-fighter from faraway Algeria in north-central Africa to fight the fire in the B.C. well.

On the scene were two Safety Boss units, under the supervision of Ken Miller, from the Drayton Valley office. Ken had gone up at the start of the fire on January 29th, with the two trucks, and Bud Wiseman and Albert McMullen, to assist in the fire-fighting project. They were kept on a 24 hour standby basis until Adair was flown in from Algeria. Though Miller was quite sure they could put the fire out and that it was not necessary to call in Mr. Adair from Africa, company officials felt they should wait for the arrival of the well-known, much publicized Adair.

Red Adair arrived on Wednesday of the following week, January 24th and he and McMullen went into the well. The fire was out and used a 25 foot length of 2 inch pipe to pull out red hot metal from around the well, they operated from behind asbestos suits to protect them from the heat of the inferno of flame from the well-head. Then Red Adair went in wearing asbestos suit and tied a line around the flow line at the Christmas tree and they hooked a cat to it and pulled it out of the fire. The next day in the early forenoon they doused the well with two lines of chemicals from the Safety Boss truck, and also two water lines on the well-head to cool it down. Once the fire was out a Halliburton truck pumped drilling mud into the hole to fill the well and it was all over.

Miller and the Safety Boss crew were released from the scene of the fire at noon of the same day and returned to Drayton Valley.

In all accounts, particularly by the press, they had a chance to play up a Canadian operation in bringing the burning well under control, the part played by Ken Miller and the Safety Boss units, but turned it down to play up the more spectacular aspects of bringing in the world-famous fire-fighter from Algeria. Almost no reference was made to the part played by the Safety Boss units at the scene. One big Vancouver daily even got Miller

The three Brownies, Penny Campbell, Gail Halber, and Susan Belliveau, having each earned their Golden Hand, will be presented with wings to wear on their uniforms when they have completed their Guide Tenderfoot Test.

Several of their Brownie Friends were at the ceremony, and they also being introduced to Guide Captain Joan Gray who welcomed them to the Troop Services Stars were presented to three of the Guides, Bonnie Baxter (1 yr.), Lynn Brown (1 yr.) and Hannel Cameron (2 yrs.).

The Guide Captain also introduced a new leader, Mrs. Henry Robinson. Mrs. Robinson has recently moved to Drayton Valley from Michener where she was the Guide Captain.

The Catholic Women's League, who sponsor the Guides here, have ordered a Troop flag to be presented to the girls, and it is expected to arrive soon. The Guides are looking forward to using the flag for the first time on Thinking Day.

Plans are being made for a joint Youth Rally to be held on Thinking Day this year with Scouts, Cubs, Guides, and Brownies all taking part. Details will be announced later. It is hoped that parents will be able to attend. Guides and Brownies also plan to invite their mothers to come to a pot-luck supper as part of Thinking Day celebrations.

Any paper if it is to be influential must not only have subscribers - it must have subscribers who read it thoroughly. My own opinions, and those of many readers and publishers with whom I have talked, make it appear that the weekly newspapers have perhaps a better claim to this criterion of worth than other newspapers."

Toastmistress Club

Reported by Betty Belliveau

Following a short business meeting members of the Toastmistress Club were entertained by an informative Workshop when they met here recently. Two experienced members, Margo Meier and Doris Kerr, and two new members Sinal Shumbashi and Marie Albert, demonstrated various aspects of decorum, the subject chosen by Toastmistress Shirley Tolchard. Etiquette, dress, orderliness, and makeup were discussed, and right and wrong ways of dealing with various situations were demonstrated by the panel of four. Members agreed that the session had been amusing and enlightening.

President Freda Wright called on conference chairman Margo Meier to outline plans for the Toastmistress conference to be held here in April. Committees were formed so that planning can get underway.

Ruth McKinnon explained the meaning of protocol, stressing its use at the forthcoming conference.

Peggy Tyler gave final plans for the Speech Contest. Preliminaries will be held here February 1st, and judged by four Drayton Valley residents.

Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten

Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten has carried on with a full enrollment since they got started last September. Classes are held in the church hall of the United Church, five days a week, Monday through Friday, from 10:00 till 3:30 pm. The school will run until next May. Five year olds are enrolled in the Kindergarten which is set up with the idea of preparing the youngsters to enter elementary school when they are six. The school set up is such a way that youngsters can start or leave at anytime in the term. Some will go straight through for the whole term, others will only take part of the term. Top enrollment for the Kindergarten is twenty-five, a number which has been maintained since it started last fall. Anyone who would like to enroll their five year olds may do so and as space permits they will be taken in. Cost is a very nominal $12.00 per month, with everything provided for the child during the time they are at the kindergarten class.

A Kindergarten Board has been set up, with Mr. Ken McKay, assistant principal at the Elementary School filling the position of chairman. Mrs. Nancy Larbender is secretary-treasurer. Members are Mrs. Marion McKenzie, Mrs. Claire Campbell, and Mrs. Molly Whelan. The Kindergarten is not affiliated with any church; the group rent the church hall from the United Church to hold the classes.

Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten teachers, Mrs. L.L. Rose, principal, Mrs. Mary Bellward and Mrs. Shirley Tolchard. Mrs. Tolchard started the Kindergarten, with Mrs. Rose, then she resigned to take a position with the Conservation Board the first of December, and Mrs. Bellward filled her place.

Principal of the Kindergarten is Mrs. Lillian Rose, who taught in the Drayton Valley Elementary school for three years. Assisting Mrs. Rose is Mrs. Mary Bellward, Mrs. Shirley Tolchard. Mrs. Bellward took her place. The two teachers take the classes on alternating days.

The kindergarten is set up with a very interesting and varied program for the youngsters. They play games, do crafts, do various projects, take band, have a storytime, etc. Among the projects they take is a coloring program "Before We Read" to prepare them for Grade 1. A very popular time, with the kiddies, of course, is "Snack" time, when they are served Koolaid and cookies. Reports cards are sent home with the children the same as in a regular school class. At Christmas time the children put on a concert. They also participated in a "Santa Claus" event. (Cont. on page 2, Col. 3)

District Personalities

MR. TONY CHEW

This week's personality is Mr. Tony Chew, who is working with his father, the well-known proprietor of the Hotel Coffee Shop, June Chew.

Tony was born in Kwang-Ton Province, in 1937 he and his mother were able to leave Communist China. They took the train from Canton to a railroad bridge across a river which separates Canton Province from Kowloon, Hong Kong. After about seven days of waiting they were able to pass the questioning of the Communists on one side of the river and of the Hong Kong authorities on the other side and they were able to walk across the bridge to freedom. Tony says that they were two of the lucky ones who were able to get out of Red China. Arriving in Hong Kong they remained there for two years until they were able to enter Canada.

Before the funds took over China Tony had an English teacher, but after they took over the country all foreign teachers except Russian were expelled from the country. Tony went to school for a while in Hong Kong to improve his English. He hopes to go back to school, at least to make up the rest of his English, in the near future. Tony met Drayton Valley very much, and of course he is very happy to be in Canada, with his father and mother.
